THE PUSH UNTIL WINTER BREAK

Ted Hooks, Principal

This last week and three days headed into Winter Break are still full of learning and fun at Chet. Assignments are still underway. Projects are being worked on. Rich activities are planned and will inspire deeper thinking. There will also be art, music, laughter, and joy here. While we all feel like it is a wild rush until our break, it really is a GREAT time to be on campus.

Children feel these next days differently, but sometimes they can feel excited, anxious, and maybe a little "off."

A powerful way to prevent these feelings from becoming overwhelming is to maintain a consistent routine as much as possible. Now is not the time to make changes that don't need to be made. Sure, this time of year offers a lot to do, but keeping the school routine in as much order as possible will help keep things on a more even keel.

Please take care of yourselves. We still have a lot of work ahead.

Thank you, and I'll see you in the halls.

Sincerely,
Ted Hooks
